Telephone Negotiations Postponed Again

UNION LEADERS ASK DELAY OF NEW CONFABS

Truman And Cabinet Talk Over Phone Situation With No Results

WASHINGTON, April 25—Resumption of government-sponsored negotiations in the 19-day-old telephone strike was postponed several hours today at the request of union leaders.

A bargaining parley between the AT and T and the long lines affiliate of the National Federation of Telephone Workers originally scheduled for 10 a. m., was postponed until 3 p. m.

Federal conciliators Peter Manno and William Margolis announced that the postponement was made at the union's request. There was no further explanation.

However, it was learned that the NFW president Joseph Beirne was in conference with top union leaders and a meeting of the 49-member policy committee of the federation was scheduled.

PRESIDENT Truman discussed the telephone strike with his cabinet this morning. Secretary of Interior Krug said afterward that the only thing that appears new in the situation is that efforts to conciliate the strike "are starting all over again."

G. S. Dring, assistant vice president of AT and T, and other company negotiators conferred briefly with federal conciliators prior to the postponement in the union-management talks. The company officials flatly asserted they had no new proposals to make and did not intend to make a wage offer.

Asked how he felt about the resumption of negotiations, Dring shrugged and replied, "we're just trying to oblige."

THE SOUTHWESTERN Bell Telephone company, and Western Electric, AT and T's manufacturing subsidiary, have accepted labor department invitations to bargaining meetings scheduled to get under way in Washington tomorrow.

U. S. Conciliation Chief Edgar L. Warren hoped that a "break" on any of the three fronts in the telephone dispute would lead to a general strike settlement since the NFW has made uniform demands on all the AT and T units.

THE PARTIES reached a tentative agreement in the long lines dispute early in the strike (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

An answer has been received from Glocca Morra which reads, "fine, we're not on Henry's lecture route."

The uncommon man really has a dilly of an idea now—let us buy off the Russians and they'll stop yelling for German reparations.

That gives us victory like a fellow with a spade flush in a game of hearts.

I hear it confused even Stalin. He called in Molotov and said, "let me get this straight—did we also defeat the United States?"

Anyway American aid to Turkey will enable her to modernize her army. It was not quite modern enough to fire a shot on our side in the recent war.

Turkey remained neutral like a hot dog vendor at an Army-Navy game. She had plenty of mustard for both sides.

BOMBS WRECK Auto Industry Studies BRITISH BILLET GM-UAW Wage Pact

Six Constables Reported Missing In Latest Holy Land Violence

JERUSALEM, April 25—A police billet at Saron, East of Tel Aviv was blown up today by a "heavy" explosion and six British constables were officially reported "missing."

Rescue workers began immediately to dig into the debris for the victims.

The official announcement said the explosion was caused by two bombs. They destroyed the orderly room and the telephone exchange.

An unofficial report from Sarano said the station also was attacked by the Jewish underground.

All police stations in the vicinity were alerted against attacks.

SIMULTANEOUSLY five armed Jews kidnaped Morris Collins, a British citizen, from the Par hotel in Tel Aviv. They released him when he informed the gang that he is a Jew.

The underground gang disconnected all the telephones in the hotel before searching the rooms on the ground floor.

Before they began their search they asked the manager, "any British here?"

Finding Collins on the terrace they blindfolded him and took him away in a car. They returned him 15 minutes later after Collins' disclosure that he is a Jew.

A police flying squad raided a cafe in Jerusalem's Zion square after receiving a telephone call from self-identified member of the Irgun Zvai Leumi who announced:

"We kidnaped three British officers."

Police stated later that they had no information of any kidnapping in Jerusalem today.

STRIKE GAINS SUPPORT PHILADELPHIA, April 25 — Six thousand maintenance employees of the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania went on strike today to join the nationwide walkout.

DETROIT, April 25—The automobile industry today studied the General Motors-UAW wage agreement, which probably will set a pattern.

The agreement provides an average hourly wage increase of 15 cents for 230,000 GM employees in 100 plants in 22 states over the nation. The cost to the corporation is estimated at 66 million dollars a year.

The settlement is expected to establish a pattern for negotiations with Chrysler, Ford and smaller automobile manufacturers, and to ward off strikes.

The United Auto Workers (CIO) and Chrysler have been meeting spasmodically since Jan. 1. No meetings are scheduled at present, but talks are expected to start in the near future and an early agreement, pattern after the GM-UAW settlement is anticipated.

A similar situation is expected to prevail between Ford and its workers, and in negotiations with Hudson, Packard and other firms.

THE GM contract, effective for one year after rank and file ratification, calls for:

1. Raises of 11 1/2 cents an hour effective at once, providing union members ratify it by May 5.

2. Six paid holidays a year.

3. Vacation pay on the basis of 40 hours for employees with (Continued on Page Two)

CIO DENOUNCES, NAM DEFENDS TAX CUT BILL

Senate Finance Committee Hears Arguments On House Measure

WASHINGTON, April 25—The house-passed GOP tax reduction bill was denounced today by the CIO as a "grave" measure for the rich and defended by the National Association of Manufacturers as an "anchor to windward" for any depression.

The views of the opposing economic groups were given before the senate finance committee, now considering the tax relief bill.

Stanley H. Ruttenberg, the CIO's assistant research director, proposed that the senate scrap the house bill and make higher corporation levies foot the bill for cutting taxes on low-income groups.

Harry E. Humphreys, Jr., chairman of the NAM government finance committee, argued that congress can slash taxes by the house figure of three billion 800 million dollars and still reduce the national debt.

THE CIO recommended this substitute for the 15.2840 per cent house tax cut bill:

1. Drop twenty million taxpayers by boosting personal exemptions to $2,500 for a married person, $1,250 single, and $500 for each dependent, up to $5,000 income—cost, 5.5 billion dollars.

2. Cut excise taxes to pre-war levels—cost 1.3 billion dollars.

3. Raise corporate taxes by restoring a modified excess profits levy, and taxing undistributed profits at a 19 per cent rate—revenue gain, 5.2 billions.

4. Close loopholes in the law by making joint returns of husbands and wives mandatory, doubling capital gains taxes, abolishing exemptions on government securities, and revising estate and gift taxes—gain 1.8 billions.

Ruttenberg said the CIO program would balance off with a 200 million dollar "net gain in revenue."

HUMPHREYS, a vice president of the United States Rubber company, took issue with the administration argument that high taxes are needed to combat inflation. He said:

"In our opinion, it is an ill-disguised attempt to justify an executive budget which is entirely too high."

The house bill gives low-income groups a 30 per cent cut with 20 per cent from $3,000 to $303,000 and 10 per cent above that.

NEW CITY LIGHT POLES ON WAY TO CIRCLEVILLE

Thirty-seven six-sided metal standards for Circleville's new downtown boulevard lighting system were enroute by truck, Friday, and were expected to arrive in the city before nightfall.

Charles T. Gilmore, Circleville district manager for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company, said he was notified that the poles were loaded on trucks Wednesday night at the Canton plant where they were manufactured and the trip was presumably begun Thursday.

Concrete bases for the poles have been imbedded at the sites for the steel standards and Mr. Gilmore said the work of installation will begin promptly. Barring some unforeseen obstacles, Mr. Gilmore asserted, the work will be completed and the lights turned on by Memorial Day, May 30.

Meanwhile plans are being formulated for a civic celebration, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, to "christen" the new modern lighting system.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon is chairman of the celebration.

Republicans; Democrats Worried About Wallace Speaking Tour In U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 25—Both Democratic and Republican leaders are concerned today over the plan of former vice president Henry A. Wallace to tour the nation in a campaign for world peace through greater cooperation with Russia.

Many leaders regret the Wallace trip as a move to spread disunity toward President Truman's program to halt Communism expansion by aiding threatened democracies.

All are interested to learn how much effect Wallace can wield on American public opinion. There will be many political ramifications raised by the Wallace tour.

SOME OF Wallace's friends already are urging that he be a presidential nomination against Mr. Truman. They want him to enter preferential primaries to test his strength against Mr. Truman before battling him in convention, certain to nominate the president. Then, these advisers would like Wallace to campaign openly against the President.

Other Wallace friends oppose such a movement. They hope Wallace will campaign with the Democratic party to make it more liberal both on domestic and on international policies.

There is almost no talk of Wallace's running on a third party ticket.

One of his closest advisers told International News Service:

"Wallace can't see a third party. He knows you can't get a third party on the ballot in most states. He has often said that state laws are rigged against a third party."

"On the other hand, I can't see him supporting a Republican nominee unless it were (former Gov. Harold) Stassen (of Minnesota) and the Republicans aren't going to nominate Stassen."

Garsson Approved Drafts Against Company

WASHINGTON, April 25 — An official of the Batavia Metal Products company, testified today that his boss, war contractor Henry M. Garsson, approved payment of a bank draft drawn against the firm by former Rep. Andrew May (D) Ky.

L. W. Arthur, comptroller of the Batavia company in 1944, gave this testimony at the conspiracy trial of May and officials of the Garsson munitions combine for whom he allegedly performed services while a member of congress.

Government prosecutor William A. Paisley introduced in evidence a form which Henry Garsson had initialed authorizing the payment to Cumberland Lumber company in Prestonburg, Ky.

The government contends that the lumber company for which May opened an account in a Prestonburg bank was used to cover payments by the Garssons for May's favors.

BEVIN STATES BRIGHT HOPES FOR THE FUTURE

Marshall Leaves Berlin On Way Home To Report On Big Four Confab

MOSCOW, April 25—The Moscow conference of foreign ministers passed into history today with departure of Secretary of State Marshall and a closing statement by British Foreign Secretary Bevin exuding optimism for the future.

While Marshall made a brief stopover in Berlin on his way back to Washington to report in full on the parley's failure to write peace treaties for Germany and Austria Bevin expressed general satisfaction.

He said the actual results "look gloomy," but said he has firm conviction the situation will improve.

Bevin declared it was of great progress and value that the Big Four powers had stated their cases frankly and fully. He was regretful however, that the Soviets had refused to subscribe to Secretary Marshall's plan for a 40-year treaty directed against German aggression.

WHEN MARSHALL left Berlin, there were indications he might not make a scheduled stop in Paris, proceeding direct to Washington by way of Iceland and Newfoundland instead.

Secretary Marshall made a two-hour stopover in Berlin today en route home to the United States.

Marshall's plane left Tempelhof airport at 3:20 p. m. He had arrived at the German capital at 1:30 p. m.

At the airport he conferred with Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, and Maj. Gen. Frank Keating, commander of the U. S. sector of Berlin.

(Reuters reported that Marshall's plane will not halt at Paris, and if the weather permits will travel direct by way of Iceland and Newfoundland to the U. S.)

MARSHALL told newsmen assembled at the airport to hear his views on the Big Four foreign ministers conference at Moscow:

"The conference was no failure, but I was disappointed because I had hoped that we would get an Austrian treaty finished."

He added: "It would have been impossible to finish completely the German treaty, but I hoped we (Continued on Page Two)

ST. LOUIS, April 25 — The Sporting News said today it was learned that Larry MacPhail, president of the New York Yankees, has been summoned to appear before Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Cincinnati April 30.

"Although the commissioner has withheld all details, it is understood MacPhail was summoned to explain why he disregarded Chandler's order to 'all concerned' not to discuss the Leo Durocher case.

Chandler recently suspended Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, for one year "for conduct detrimental to baseball."

The Sporting News further stated: "Part of the charges on which MacPhail is being brought before the commissioner concern telephone calls he is said to have made to magnates of other clubs, even in the National League, which is considered by the commissioner as an effort to stir up strife among the club owners."

While Marshall made a brief stopover in Berlin on his way back to Washington to report in full on the parley's failure to write peace treaties for Germany and Austria Bevin expressed general satisfaction.

He said the actual results "look gloomy," but said he has firm conviction the situation will improve.

Bevin declared it was of great progress and value that the Big Four powers had stated their cases frankly and fully. He was regretful however, that the Soviets had refused to subscribe to Secretary Marshall's plan for a 40-year treaty directed against German aggression.

WHEN MARSHALL left Berlin, there were indications he might not make a scheduled stop in Paris, proceeding direct to Washington by way of Iceland and Newfoundland instead.

Secretary Marshall made a two-hour stopover in Berlin today en route home to the United States.

Marshall's plane left Tempelhof airport at 3:20 p. m. He had arrived at the German capital at 1:30 p. m.

At the airport he conferred with Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, and Maj. Gen. Frank Keating, commander of the U. S. sector of Berlin.

(Reuters reported that Marshall's plane will not halt at Paris, and if the weather permits will travel direct by way of Iceland and Newfoundland to the U. S.)

MARSHALL told newsmen assembled at the airport that his views on the Big Four foreign ministers conference at Moscow:

"The conference was no failure, but I was disappointed because I had hoped that we would get an Austrian treaty finished."

He added: "It would have been impossible to finish completely the German treaty, but I hoped we (Continued on Page Two)

SPORTING NEWS SAYS MacPHAIL IRKED CHANDLER

ST. LOUIS, April 25 — The Sporting News said today it was learned that Larry MacPhail, president of the New York Yankees, has been summoned to appear before Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Cincinnati April 30.

The Sporting News said: "Although the commissioner has withheld all details, it is understood MacPhail was summoned to explain why he disregarded Chandler's order to all concerned not to discuss the Leo Durocher case."

Chandler recently suspended Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, for one year "for conduct detrimental to baseball."

The Sporting News further stated: "Part of the charges on which MacPhail is being brought before the commissioner concern telephone calls he is said to have made to magnates of other clubs, even in the National League, which is considered by the commissioner as an effort to stir up strife among the club owners."

would agree more widely on fundamental issues."

Marshall declared:

"The differences of opinion between the Soviets and the western allies must be reconciled because we don't know how long Europe can endure while we are struggling with the problem."

THE SECRETARY said there will be a short meeting of the foreign ministers in New York in September before the scheduled London conference in November.

Marshall declined to comment on reports that a western state will be set up in Germany. He noted, however, that the American and French views came closer together at Moscow.

His next meeting with the top foreign affairs spokesmen of Britain, Russia and France will be in November when the Big Four council renews its deliberations in London.

"The differences of opinion between German and Austrian peace settlements was formally concluded with a banquet tendered by Premier Stalin at the Kremlin last night to the foreign ministers and their top aides.

The Soviets maintained their adamant stand on salient issues to the last.

SOVIET FOREIGN Minister Molotov at the final session categorically rejected Marshall's proposal that the Austrian treaty be referred to the United Nations general assembly at its September meeting.

"Such questions," Molotov said, "do not come within the competence of the UN."

The United States, however, itself may submit the issue to the UN if the Soviets do not indicate they are prepared to make concessions before September.

Marshall said at his last formal news conference in the Soviet capital that he believes "we have a fair chance of reaching agreements on these critical matters within a reasonable time however depressing these present delays may appear."

Two husbands filed divorce suits in Pickaway county common pleas court, Thursday, each charging gross neglect of duty.

Denver H. Fisher alleges that he enlisted in the Navy three months after his marriage June 27, 1945 at Atmore, Ala., to Ernestine Barnes Fisher and that after he was discharged from the Navy in January, 1946 she deserted him and that her present address is unknown.

ATTLEE FIRES BITTER BLAST AT CHURCHILL

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, April 25—British Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee bitterly assailed Winston Churchill today as "Britain's most disastrous chancellor of a century."

Attlee, addressing the Scottish trade union congress, accused the former conservative prime minister of "obscure imperialism" in regard to India.

Churchill has been a vigorous opponent of the labor government's decision to withdraw from India by June of 1948.

Attlee replied to Churchill's jibe that the laborites are "living on American dole" by recalling the conservative leader's frequent tributes to wartime lend lease from the United States.

On his trip, Wallace also will address collegiate audiences at universities in the cities he visits.

The Wallace tour both annoys and interests leaders of both parties. They don't like his plan to stir up opposition to Mr. Truman's present international program toward Russia. But they are interested to learn the national reaction to his tour in order to gauge his influence on the 1948 presidential election.

Naturally, the Republicans have less anxiety than Democrats. They hope Wallace stirs up a lot of anti-Truman sentiment and then either launches a third party or leads a great mass stay-at-home movement for November, 1948. In either of the latter events, the GOP thinks it can win a landslide victory 19 months hence.

MINIMUM PAY MAY BE TAKEN OUT OF BILL
COLUMBUS, O., April 25—A move to strike minimum salary provisions from the senate's Daniels-Cramer school foundation bill was reported developing today in the house education committee.

As approved by the senate, the bill establishes a $2,000 minimum for a teacher with a bachelor's degree or six years experience.

Hearings this week developed opposition to the clause, and committee leaders predicted it might be removed from the bill.

Meanwhile, reductions by the house group were expected to slice the bill's cost to $5 millions. Gov. Herbert had recommended an 80 million dollar bill. The senate-approved measure calls for an 88 million dollar outlay.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION IS DEFENDANT IN SUIT
James H. Kinser, Circleville, filed suit in Pickaway county common pleas court, Thursday, against the Industrial Commission of Ohio, seeking to gain participation in the state insurance fund.

Reciting that the Industrial Commission rejected his claim, Kinser claims he suffered injuries to his head, chest, back and legs, on July 2, 1943 when, employed by the C. S. Foreman company in Pickaway county, he was caught under a falling tree.

Kinser's petition says his claim was denied Aug. 1, 1945 and again on April 4, 1947.

The union originally demanded a $12 a week raise but is believed prepared to compromise for $6. This would match the second-round pay boosts given by General Motors, Westinghouse and U. S. Steel to their employees.

OHIO ASSEMBLY FAR BEHIND IN BILL PASSAGE

Only 27 Of 793 Measures Introduced Approved By Both Houses

COLUMBUS, O., April 25—The record of the Ohio legislature in getting things done is just about one-46th as good as that of the legislature of New York.

The 97th Ohio general assembly has gone home for the week-end, thus ending its 16th week of sessions with a total of 27 measures actually passed by both houses and presented to the governor. Only six measures were signed by the presiding officers of the house and senate this week.

By comparison, the New York assembly, in a three-months session which already is history, passed 1,026 bills into law.

The Ohio average, to date, is 1.7 bills per week.

The New York average is 79 bills a week.

It is understandable, then, why house leaders are becoming impatient with the dilatory tactics being pursued and have called the first Friday session of the biennium for next week. Thus, for the first time, the solons will put in a five-day week.

MOST OF the major problems facing the legislators still remain to be enacted into law. These include school and local government aid, a soldier bonus, the general appropriations bill, a subsidy to counties for tuberculosis care, and the so-called "additions and betterments" bill providing for capital improvements.

Still other measures which were the subject of considerable ballyhoo at the start of the session appear doomed to die on the vine as the timeclock runs out before their enactment. In this category we find the strip mine control legislation.

IN ALL, 793 bills have been introduced in both houses—495 in the house and 298 in the senate. The house stopped introduction of bills on February 10.

The senate was supposed to have the same deadline, but traditionally it is disregarded. In fact, only 129 bills had been placed in the senate hopper by the so-called deadline date. The remainder of the 298 were placed in under "suspension of rules"—three of them as late as yesterday.

SCIENTISTS SAY TRUMAN PLAN IS NOT ENOUGH

Elimination Of Atom Weapons By Agreement Said Way To Peace

CHICAGO, April 25 — Scientists who assisted in the development of the atomic bomb warned today that the new Truman doctrine "will not solve the central problem of our security—that of atomic weapons."

In an editorial in the current issue of the "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists," the publication emphasized that "the elimination of atomic weapons by agreement must remain the central task of our policy."

The scientists said America's traditional ocean barriers no longer are effective weapons of defense, and that in any atomic war, "America will face crippling blows." They continued:

"Therefore the foremost task of our policy must be to prevent the state of affairs in which several nations will be armed with atomic weapons."

The bulletin pointed out that Russia, sometime within the next three or 15 years, will have unlocked the secret of nuclear fission. The editorial stated further:

"The blunt truth is that the Soviet Union can be prevented from acquiring atomic arms in only two ways: by effective agreement or by force, directed not towards her periphery but at her very center."

TAXI DRIVERS STRIKE WHEN POLE IS MOVED

CANTON, O., April 25—Eighty Canton taxicab drivers refused to work today because their trip-call telephone was removed along with a steel pole in a city salvage project.

The drivers, who are members of the AFL-truck drivers union, operate cabs for the Auburn, Yellow and Checker companies.

Four newly organized companies operated by World War II veterans continued to serve the city.

The striking drivers claimed that other drivers still had telephones on which to call.

City Electrician A. G. Maurer explained that no discrimination was intended and the pole to which other telephones were attached is used for a guide wire on the public square flag pole.

NL HOME RUN CROP AHEAD OF JUNIOR CIRCUIT

American League Pitchers Doing Well; Indians Tied For First

NEW YORK, April 25—Pitchers are still away ahead of the hitters in the American League, while the National League has taken over the junior circuit's perennial role as a home run-hitting loop.

Five of the last seven no-hitters in the majors were achieved before May 15, and the first one of the current campaign may pop up any day. Speed ball hurlers like Bob Feller and Hal Gregg have been knocking at the door, and almost every day some pitcher turns in a low-hit game.

In the American League yesterday, for instance, five of the six starting pitchers were really bearing down.

TEX HUGHSON of the Red Sox allowed only two hits and Frank Shea yielded but three as Boston beat the Yankees 1 to 0. Rookie Shea picked a tough spot to get a three-hitter out of his system, but his brilliant performance gives the Yankees a total of five hurlers in top shape.

Jack Kramer of the St. Louis Browns held the Detroit Tigers to three hits and beat them, 6 to 1.

Don Black of Cleveland won a 1-0 duel from Johnny Rigney of the White Sox. Black allowed only four hits and Rigney but five, but one of the latter was a homer by Pat Seerey which won the game.

CLEVELAND vaulted to a first-place tie with the Yankees, while the White Sox dropped to fourth and the Red Sox advanced to third.

Getting back to the home run department, National Leaguers have hit 53 circuit clouts this season. That is double their output at this stage of the campaign last year.

Big John Mize of the New York Giants, who usually is a slow starter, tied Eddie Miller of the Reds for home run honors. Each has five apiece. Mize hit three in succession yesterday—the third time in his career he has performed that feat—as the Giants lost a 14-to-5 slugfest to the Braves.

A homer by Phil Cavarretta featured Chicago's 6 to 5 victory over the league-leading Pirates. Dixie Walker knocked in both runs and Ralph Branca did most of the pitching as Brooklyn knocked over the Phillies again, 2 to 0. This victory put the Dodgers only half a game behind Pittsburgh.

Other teams were idle.

FAULTLESS BAT 500 IN EARLY RACING EVENTS

LEXINGTON, KY., April 25—A brown colt named Faultless was "batting 500" in the pre-Kentucky Derby league today, and that was enough to restore to popularity that old saying—"the horse that wins the blue grass stakes will win the Derby nine days hence."

Faultless, swift stalwart from the barns of Warren Wright's Calumet farm, won its seventh race in 14 starts yesterday, forging to triumph in the 23rd running of the $15,000 added blue grass stakes at Keeneland track.

The result put Faultless' earnings at $80,740 to date and brought the son of Bull Lea to an almost equal status with C. V. Whitney's favored Phalanx, in the pre-Kentucky Derby betting.

A prohibitive favorite in the small four-horse blue grass field, Faultless paid $2.40 for a close triumph over Circle M. Farm's Rickolater.

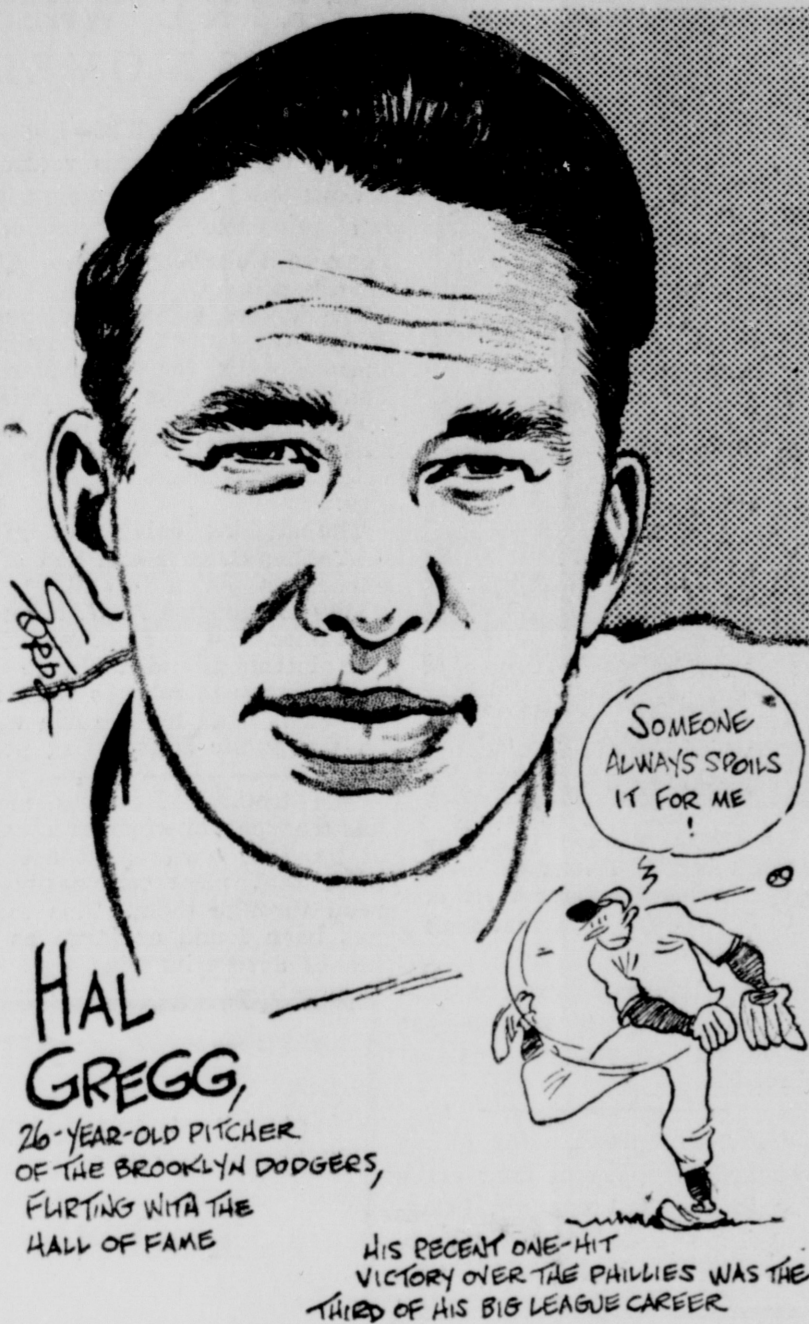

The Calumet colorbearer ran the mile and an eighth in a fast 1:51 1-5.

HIS RECENT ONE-HIT VICTORY OVER THE PHILLIES WAS THE THIRD OF HIS BIG LEAGUE CAREER

CHS TRACK TEAM TAKING PART IN THREE-WAY MEET

Circleville high school track team was scheduled to brave the weather and competition of two other South Central Ohio league teams at Washington C. H. Friday afternoon.

The Tigers were to compete in a triangular meet with Washington C. H. and Greenfield at about 3:15 p. m.

RUTH NOT ON M'CARTHY YANK ALL STAR TEAM

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25—Joe McCarthy, former manager of the New York Yankees, explained today why he omitted the name of Babe Ruth from his all-star Yankee team. Marjoe said:

"I considered only men who played for me and not those who rose to fame with the Yanks before I took over."

The bambino played his last four years under McCarthy. McCarthy said he would field the following theoretical team as his greatest: DiMaggio, c.f.; Rolfe, 3b; Crosetti, ss; Gordon, 2b; Gehrig, 1b; Dickey, c; Keller, 1.f.; Seikirk, r.f.; and Ruffing, Gomez and Chandler, pitchers.

complete by taking his second straight.

Cleveland wound up tied with New York for the top spot, while Chicago dropped to fourth.

Other than the one slip, Rigney was practically untouchable. Black, however, was still better giving up only four hits in his tour of duty.

A pitchers battle all the way, the game ended with neither team showing much offensive strength, except for Seerey's four-master.

Rigney limited the Tribe to only five hits, none after the sixth, but the damage already had been done by then.

SEEREY'S BAT WINS FOR TRIBE

Surprising Indians Climb To First Behind Black's Tight Pitching

CHICAGO, April 25 — Those surprising Cleveland Indians, surprising even to their most ardent supporters, climbed right smack into a tie for first place in the American League today, thanks to the big fat bat of big Pat Seerey.

It was a sad, sad day for Chicago's White Sox when Johnny Rigney served up that home run pitch to roly-poly Seerey. Not only did Pat blast the ball into the left field seats, but he also blasted the Pale Hose out of first.

That one run was all the Tribe needed, and with Don Black hurling near-perfect ball, the Indians nailed their fourth in a row, 1-0, yesterday at Chicago and Black, Cleveland's reformed "bad boy", made his comeback

LOUIS PLANS TO RETIRE AFTER TWO MORE BOUTS

NEW YORK, April 25 — The spectacular ring career of Joe Louis will come to an end at Yankee stadium in September, 1948, unless he is defeated there this coming September in the first of the two remaining bouts he plans to fight.

The Brown Bomber's announcement that he will retire after two more bouts came after his proposed title defense next June 26 was postponed until next September because "there isn't any suitable opponent now."

Louis hopes that by next September, a fighter will emerge from an informal heavyweight elimination tournament including such challengers as Melio Bettina, Jersey Joe Walcott, Joe Baksi, Ezzard Charles and Joey Maxim.

Off the record, Joe did not seem to think much of this aggregation with the exception of Baksi and Charles.

NL HOME RUN CROP AHEAD OF JUNIOR CIRCUIT

American League Pitchers Doing Well; Indians Tied For First

NEW YORK, April 25—Pitchers are still away ahead of the hitters in the American League, while the National League has taken over the junior circuit's perennial role as a home-run-hitting loop.

Five of the last seven no-hitters in the majors were achieved before May 15, and the first one of the current campaign may pop up any day. Speed ball hurlers like Bob Feller and Hal Gregg have been knocking at the door, and almost every day some pitcher turns in a low-hit game.

In the American League yesterday, for instance, five of the six starting pitchers were really beating down.

TEX HUGHSON of the Red Sox allowed only two hits and Frank Shea yielded but three as Boston beat the Yankees 1 to 0. Rookie Shea picked a tough spot to get a three-hitter out of his system, but his brilliant performances gives the Yankees a total of five hurlers in top shape.

Jack Kramer of the St. Louis Browns held the Detroit Tigers to three hits and beat them, 6 to 1.

Don Black of Cleveland won a 1-0 duel from Johnny Rigney of the White Sox. Black allowed only four hits and Rigney but five, but one of the latter was a homer by Pat Seerey which won the game.

CLEVELAND vaulted to a first-place tie with the Yankees, while the White Sox dropped to fourth and the Red Sox advanced to third.

Getting back to the home run department, National Leaguers have hit 55 circuit clouts this season. That is double their output at this stage of the campaign last year.

Big John Mize of the New York Giants, who usually is a slow starter, tied Eddie Miller of the Reds for home run honors. Each has five apiece. Mize hit three in succession yesterday — the third time in his career he has performed that feat — as the Giants lost a 14-to-5 slugfest to the Braves.

A homer by Phil Cavarretta featured Chicago's 6 to 5 victory over the league-leading Pirates. Dixie Walker knocked in both runs and Ralph Branca did most of the pitching as Brooklyn knocked over the Phillies again, 2 to 0. This victory put the Dodgers only half a game behind Pittsburgh.

Other teams were idle.

CAPITAL PAPER REVEALS HUGE WAR 'SCANDAL'

New York Tammany Power
Named Secret Boss Of
'Tax Dodging Firm'

WASHINGTON, April 25—The Washington Times-Herald in a copyright story said today that Frank Costello, powerful New York "racket king" and Tammany power, "was named as the secret boss of a fantastic war-time manufacturing network that dodged millions of dollars in taxes by operating as a 'non-profit research organization.'"

The page one article said "a new war-contract scandal destined to stagger official Washington with the enormity of its ramifications was revealed."

Maritime commission chairman William W. Smith was quoted in the article as saying that Costello, whom he reportedly described as "the slot machine king," was "the undercover head of the controlling owner behind the curtain," which is located in the nation's capital.

The newspaper said: "Smith identified Costello as Aerodynamics Research Corp. Aerodynamics Research Corp. 'It was through this parent 'non-profit research organization' that the manufacturing network operated, underbidding competitors on war contracts because of the 'tax-free' nature of Aero."

"So carefully was the real activity of Costello's cartel obscured that government experts from several agencies were apparently baffled throughout the war years."

WEATHER STILL BOTHERING AA; 2 GAMES PLAYED

By International News Service
The American Association sweated out the weather man again today.

The minor loop has been battling against cold, rain and even snow since the season opened on the 23rd. Yesterday was no exception as only two games were played.

Minneapolis and St. Paul finally got their home openers off their chests—to the dismay of the Saints.

The Kansas City Blues soiled the St. Paul debut with an 11-to-3 win. The Yankee farm team blasted three Saints pitchers for 16 hits, including two home runs.

St. Paul also apparently lost possession of the opening-day attendance honor as only 10,814 turned out to see the game. The Saints had won the association's cup four years in succession up until this year.

Across the river, however, the other half of the twin cities fared slightly better. Minneapolis shut out Milwaukee, 4 to 0. Mervin Grissom let the Brewers down with only one hit in the Millers' home debut.

Al Roberge, Milwaukee second baseman, spiked Grissom's chance for a no-hit game when he beat out a slow roller down the third-base line in the eighth inning.

CHICAGO, April 25 — Ohio State, whose Big Nine baseball forces are trying to make the jump from last place to first in one quick season, lays it on the line again today when it meets a menacing Northwestern team in the first game of a two-contest weekend set at Evanston, Ill.

Northwestern, which beat Minnesota in its only conference game to date, will send pitcher Dick Boklelman, who beat at the Gophers, against the Buckeyes today. Pete Perini, ace of the Ohio State mound corps, will oppose him.

In other conference battles, all of which are the first of a two-game series, Minnesota plays at Indiana, Illinois at Michigan and Wisconsin at Iowa. Michigan's game against the Illini will be the conference curtain-raiser for the Wolverines.

CAPITAL PAPER REVEALS HUGE WAR 'SCANDAL'

New York Tammany Power
Named Secret Boss Of
'Tax Dodging Firm'

WASHINGTON, April 25—The Washington Times-Herald in a copyright story said today that Frank Costello, powerful New York "racket king" and Tammany power, "was named as the secret boss of a fantastic wartime manufacturing network that dodged millions of dollars in taxes by operating as a 'non-profit research organization.'"

The page one article said "a new war-contract scandal destined to stagger official Washington with the enormity of its ramifications was revealed."

Maritime commission chairman William W. Smith was quoted in the article as saying that Costello, whom he reportedly described as "the slot machine king," was "the undercover head of the controlling owner behind the nation," which is located in the nation's capital.

The newspaper said: "Smith identified Costello as Aerodynamics Research Corp. Aerodynamics Research Corp. 'It was through this parent 'non-profit research organization' that the manufacturing network operated, underbidding competitors on war contracts because of the 'tax-free' nature of Aero."

"So carefully was the real activity of Costello's cartel obscured that government experts were apparently baffled throughout the war years."

WEATHER STILL BOTHERING AA; 2 GAMES PLAYED

By International News Service
The American Association sweated out the weather man again today.

The minor loop has been battling against cold, rain and even snow since the season opened on the 23rd. Yesterday was no exception as only two games were played.

Minneapolis and St. Paul finally got their home openers off their chests—to the dismay of the Saints.

The Kansas City Blues soiled the St. Paul debut with an 11-to-3 win. The Yankee farm team blasted three Saints pitchers for 16 hits, including two home runs.

St. Paul also apparently lost possession of the opening-day attendance honor as only 10,814 turned out to see the game. The Saints had won the association's cup four years in succession up until this year.

Across the river, however, the other half of the twin cities fared slightly better. Minneapolis shut out Milwaukee, 4 to 0. Mervin Grissom let the Brewers down with only one hit in the Millers' home debut.

Al Roberge, Milwaukee second baseman, spiked Grissom's chance for a no-hit game when he beat out a slow roller down the third-base line in the eighth inning.

OHIO STATE NINE SEEKS WIN OVER NORTHWESTERN

CHICAGO, April 25 — Ohio State, whose Big Nine baseball forces are trying to make the jump from last place to first in one quick season, lays it on the line again today when it meets a menacing Northwestern team in the first game of a two-contest weekend set at Evanston, Ill.

Northwestern, which beat Minnesota in its only conference game to date, will send pitcher Dick Bokelman, who beat the Gophers, against the Buckeyes today. Pete Perini, ace of the Ohio State mound corps, will oppose him.

In other conference battles, all of which are the first of a two-game series, Minnesota plays at Indiana, Illinois at Michigan and Wisconsin at Iowa. Michigan's game against the Illini will be the conference curtain-raiser for the Wolverines.

LABOR'S FATE

THE HARTLEY LABOR bill, which passed the house of representatives by a vote of almost three to one, is a clear indication of a new mood in the field of national legislation. The government apparently is passing from a spirit characterized by unusual friendliness and tolerance toward labor, to a mood which, without being exactly hostile, seems determined to grant labor only what its leaders seem more clearly to deserve. What will happen between house and senate, between congress and President, is still uncertain.

Thus an era has passed in the realm of labor. There will still be struggles on the part of labor unions in the very human effort to get all they can for themselves and their associates. But rights and duties may be more evenly balanced than they have been in recent years, which may be regarded as a definite improvement in the long run. The laborer will still be worthy of his hire, and presumably will still get an adequate return for his efforts if he does his fair share of the work; but he needs to do his fair share, and if he does, there is likely to be fairer distribution of proceeds than there used to be.

COLLECTING VOICES

MOST AMERICANS would give almost anything to hear Lincoln's voice delivering the Gettysburg address. This is not available in the Yale University collection of voice records, simply because the phonograph had not been invented at the time he delivered it; but many historic moments have been preserved.

The bugle call that sounded the charge of the Light Brigade was repeated in 1890 by the bugler, for Robert Vincent, of New York, who formed the Yale collection. The Duke of Windsor's speech renouncing the British throne so that he could marry Mrs. Simpson is there. So also are the voices of both Roosevelts, of President Wilson, of Admiral Peary, Bernard Shaw and James Whitcomb Riley.

This collection does not exhaust the field. Other collectors might find a search for such historic records rewarding.

TWELVE STATES AWAKE

TWELVE STATES recognize that their schools face a crisis, and have raised their teachers' pay. Except for New York, all are from the West and South: Arkansas, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Indiana, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota and Washington. Fifteen large cities, according to the National Association of Education, have already agreed to pay their teachers more.

The other 31 states had better fall into line, as many of them plan to do. Otherwise they will find themselves left with only the poorest teachers, or with none at all.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 25—The most important part of the Senator Malone speech predicting the Greek-Turk aid bill would lead to war, failed to reach the public eye in most press and radio accounts.

The freshman Republican senator from Nevada said he had found no military man who said Greece or Turkey could be defended against Russian attack for a week.

The genuine opposition in the senate to Mr. Truman's proposal is founded on this ground, and this opposition is much larger and more doubtful than the sprinkling of votes against the measure will indicate (early checking indicated only 15 votes against.) But many an eye will be spoken by senators who wonder sincerely if Greece and Turkey are the proper places where the line against Russia imperialism should be held. These senators would like to see a more defensible stand taken.

Indeed this Greek-Turk affair has caused more mental anguish among senators wrestling between their convictions and politics than any other issue so far, including the union reform bill. Malone is supposed to have called three distinguished citizens of his state on the telephone, for instance, and they advised him to go cautiously. This would have been easy because a freshman is supposed to be seen, but not conspicuously. Instead, he spent all day Sunday in his office, courageously writing out what he thought, rather than what might be considered advisable.

Majority of the senators went through the same experience. Malone told an associate he decided to speak out because his constituents would soon find out the exact situation. He referred to some of the other senators privately as "hedgehogs," which is a new word in the political dictionary alluding to porkers afraid to jump the hedge.

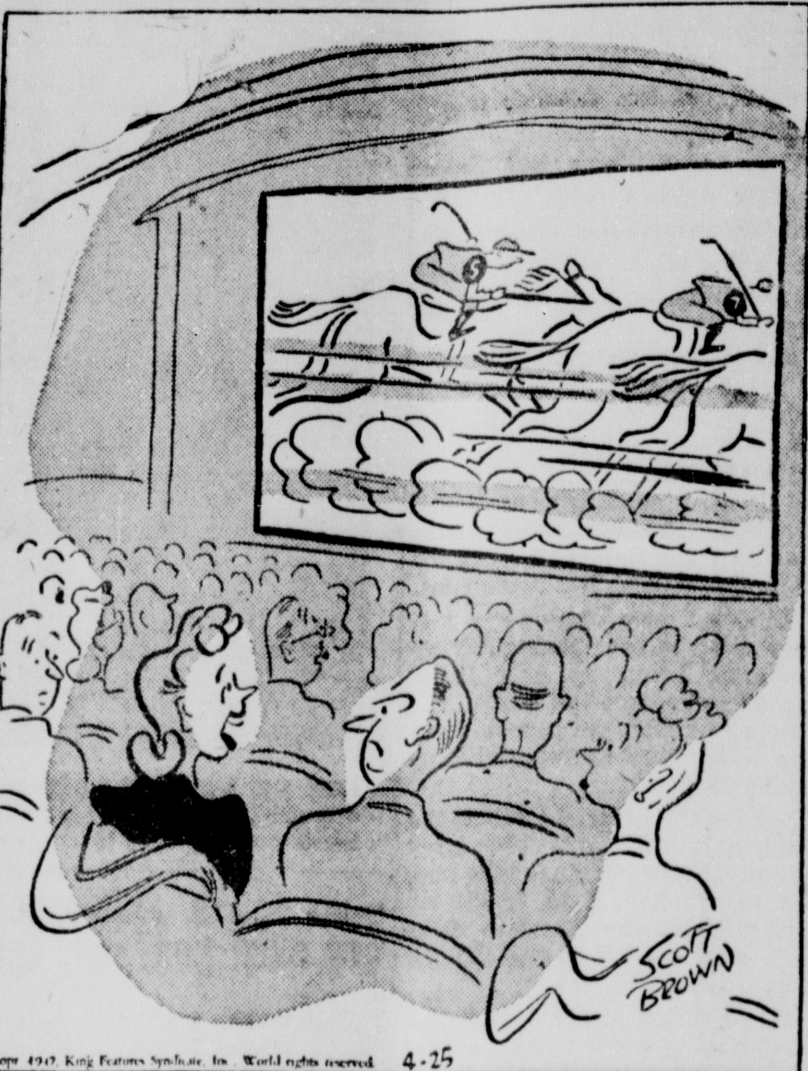

His prophecy of probable war, however, was not necessarily substantiated by the surprising message from General Marshall the same day. Certain fast interpreters raced conclusively to the idea that Marshall considered the legislation indispensable urgent because he needed it for diplomatic effect at the Big Four ministers conference. Yet information generally circulated in the senate has suggested the Greek government is getting along fairly well with its military campaign against the Communist guerrillas.

As a matter of fact, Senator Vandenberg is supposed to have arranged to get the Marshall message to help the bill acquire the greatest possible senate majority for popular effect.

Neither of these circumstances suggests Malone's prophecy might swiftly become true. Communism and its purposes are rather generally understood now throughout the United States, although practically no sentiment exists for going to war against such an inferior system. The Communies and their fellow travelers (Republican Chairman Reese aptly calls them "typhoid Marys"), may want a war and may try to provoke one, but the overwhelmingly popular leadership of this nation merely wants to know what is going on in the world and to dilute its Communist infiltrators.

DIET AND HEALTH

When the Air is Polluted

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONLY of recent years have medical men come to rank polluted air with polluted water as a cause of disease, and even today we are just beginning to realize the total bad effects which may come from breathing smoke-filled air.

The average person breathes in from 7,000 to 10,000 quarts of air daily. If this air contains irritating substances, they are, in large part, left behind when the air is breathed out again, being deposited in the nose, sinuses, windpipe or lungs.

Cases of Pneumonia
Dr. Clarence A. Mills of Cincinnati has made studies which indicate that the greatest number of pneumonia cases occur in areas where the smoke pollution is greatest.

Smoke, of course, does not cause pneumonia directly but Dr. Mills thinks it does set up a constant irritation of the air passages which makes it easy for disease germs to gain a foothold and start an infection.

In a number of cities he found that persons living on hills or in the areas of the city of the highest altitude do not suffer from pneumonia nearly as often as did those living in the lower areas. Dr. Mills thinks that such infections as colds, sinus infection and bronchitis would also show a similar relationship to pollution of the air with smoke.

Respiratory Infections

It is well known that respiratory infections cause more illnesses which result in loss of working time and efficiency than does any other class of disease. Even though treatment with penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs has reduced the number of deaths which occur from pneumonia and similar conditions, the number of cases of these diseases is as great as ever. With the growth of large industries in many communities and the consequent greater pollution of the air with smoke it is to be expected, if Dr. Mills is correct, that even more cases of pneumonia and other respiratory infections will develop.

It is evident that pollution of the air is destructive and costly. Those responsible for the health of the public are well aware of these facts and are making every effort to cut down smoke pollution of the air in every way possible. However, this is by no means a simple problem and will require its solution the combined efforts of all those interested in the public health.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

SHERRY'S EYES were thoughtful.

"It seemed to me that if I went to New York with Mother I'd drift along all the rest of my life. I hated to hurt her but I felt that this was the right time to begin making up my own mind about things if I was ever going to do it. And I'm so glad, Lex. Mother's taken the whole thing better than I expected. And she'll be so busy with her new job, she won't have time to miss me. Mother's—very self-sufficient. Maybe I'll get to be that way, too. At least, I feel as though I've got a mind of my own and that I'm letting it function at last. And that's something."

She laughed a little. And Lex grinned down at her. But his eyes were grave. He asked, "What's this town of Oakridge like? You know anything about it?"
"Not much," Sherry admitted. "Only what Alan Holmes wrote about it—he's the man I'm going to work for. Population eight thousand, two hundred and something, just about the size of Brundage. And it's on the Scioto River and the newspaper has a circulation of around three thousand, I think it was."

"This Alan Holmes—he's the editor?"

Sherry nodded. "His letter sounded nice. I think he got a kick out of the angle of the city girl who wanted to go to a small town. He said reversals of the usual procedure always intrigued him and that maybe this idea of mine was a part of a new trend toward decentralization. He said my letter sounded literate and that he could give me all the actual newspaper training I'd need in Oakridge."

As she talked on, smiling and animated, Lex let his eyes rest on the warm softness of her hair, curling against her straight young shoulders, on the fresh loveliness of her skin, the sparkle of her curious golden eyes. It seemed to him he had never been aware before of just how beautiful she was, how gay and sweet. Had he put a high enough value on her friendliness, Lex wondered with an odd humbleness. The comradeship between them, the frequent week-ends she spent at the farm, the afternoons skating and tobogganing, the evenings at the movies, or square dancing, or just eating hamburgers and putting nickels in the juke box at Pete's—all those things added up into something rather special. Funny how you could take a person pretty much for granted, liking her a lot, of course, having fun when you were together—but not really appreciating all she had given you until it was on the verge of being taken away.

After a while Sherry became aware of something strange in his glance. "Why do you look at me so oddly, Lex?"

He grinned. "Was I? Maybe it's because I just realized how much I'm going to miss you." Somehow the thing became even more real for being put into words.
"I'll miss you, Lex—and Steve and Aunt Pen, all of this." Her arms made a wide, embracing gesture. Generalities were always safer—much safer when you felt about anyone as she felt about Lex, when you were such an utter fool that you might give yourself away if you got very personal. Sherry hurried on, past the danger of that too revealing moment. "I've always loved it here—I always will. I hope Oakridge will be a little bit like Brundage. I'm counting on it."

Lex nodded. "I hope it will be, too, Sherry. And I hope you find everything you want there, all you've missed in your life up to now, the qualities of reality and simplicity, the friendly people, work you like. I hope you get it all tied up in a bright red ribbon, like the biggest Christmas gift ever, and that it all adds up to happiness."

Tears pressed against Sherry's eyelids, tears she dared not let fall. "Thank you, Lex. I hope you find the same things here, all the happiness—you and Kay."

Her glance fell away from his. Sometimes Lex saw too deeply and she wouldn't want him to read her thoughts.

In three weeks he and Kay would be married. The twentieth of June. It seemed to Sherry that if she could get through that day she could get through the rest of her life. She tried to shut her mind against the picture of Kay, lovely and ardent, in bridal white satin, of Lex, tall and straight at her side, repeating the solemn vows that were so deeply moving. She mustn't cry—she mustn't!

But the hot tears pressed too hard, spilled over. Sherry buried her face against her knees and hid it in her clasped arms.
"Here," Lex said, surprised and appalled, "what on earth—"

He would have put his arm around her, but Sherry shook her head and moved away from him. "Don't touch me," she said thickly. "Leave me alone. Oh, Lex, I don't know why I'm crying."

"I do." But he made no further move to comfort her, just sat there, his arms clasped around his knees, frowning down at the water. "You're crying because you're a little scared. It isn't easy to turn your back on familiar things and start off by yourself on a whole new way of living."

"That's it," Sherry admitted. "That's all it is. And it's so foolish of me, because I'll be doing the thing I want to do, that I decided upon myself."

"Even so, you feel pulled two ways—confused, uncertain."
"Oh, Lex, you do know how it is." She pulled her handkerchief in her pocket and scrubbed at her eyes. "You've been through the same thing."

He grinned briefly, still staring down at the little stream. "Yes, I've been through it."
Sherry ventured a glance at him and he turned his head swiftly and his eyes met. She couldn't pull hers away.

He asked, "That's all that's wrong, isn't it?"
"Yes, Lex, that's all." She forced a small tremulous smile to bolster up the necessary lie. "I don't know why I was so silly. It was—just that I suddenly realized this will be my last time at the farm for a long while—the last time I'll see you and Steve and Aunt Pen." Her voice grew steadier. "But I'm all right now."

"Good," Lex said. But there was still a frown between his brows. "Sherry, tell me something. Why did you say for me not to touch you?"

"Did I, Lex?"

"When you started to cry. I only meant to comfort you. Didn't you know that, Sherry?"

"Of course—only—well, I seem to have been doing quite a bit of weeping on your shoulder lately, for one reason or another. The night Val was ill. . . I couldn't help myself then. But now—if I had let you put your arm around me, it wouldn't have been quite fair to Kay, would it?"

Lex went on staring at her. After a moment, Sherry repeated, "It wouldn't have been fair to Kay, would it, Lex? We know we're just friends—but she might not understand. You couldn't blame her."

"Yes, I guess you're right," Lex agreed. His voice was a little diffident. "I—thought maybe you were afraid something might happen—like happened on the bridge that night."

"No," Sherry denied sharply, color flaming under her skin. "That wasn't it at all."

So Lex remembered that night, too. Well, it was something both of them would do better to forget. A moment's weakness on his part—and she had responded so eagerly, so shamelessly.

Sherry thought, with bitter candor, I'd kiss him now, just as eagerly, if he gave the slightest indication it was what he wanted. If he leaned even a little closer—or touched me. . . . Because I couldn't help myself—because I love him so much.

The realization made her momentarily weak. Then the spell that seemed to hold her snapped and she pushed her palms down hard against the springy sod and got to her feet. She started walking quickly toward the spot where they had left their horses. After a moment she heard Lex's footsteps in the underbrush behind her. But even when he overtook her, neither of them spoke. They only strode on side by side and mounted their horses and rode once more through the gentle dreaming beauty of the summer day.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, April 25

A DAY of opportunity for important activities, in which employers, superiors and elders may be in a frame of mind to confer favors, advancement or other tokens of preferment. However, a treacherous undercurrent of the sinister and subtle may so distort the viewpoint, possibly through suspicion and resentment against duplicity and betrayal, that cherished plans and objectives may be dashed to the point of devastation. Domestic, social and affectional relations seem in the balance.

AN ODD old fellow, noted for never trying a finesse, was asked once why he didn't finesse in a situation which would have given him an extra trick without jeopardizing his contract, and he answered: "Finesse? But, when certain tactics proved costly on a particular deal, he is not necessarily going to act differently if a similar situation arises again. That sounded like a juicy morsel to West, one of the nation's finest rubber and tournament players, who made a "trap pass" on the first round with the idea of collecting big penalties later against his vulnerable opponents. He knew North as a player who never passes an opening suit bid, and he also was sure that the jump bid of 4-Clubs on the second round would not be passed. When the 6-Clubs reached him, that was even more enticing than he had hoped for, so of course he doubled.

Against that bidding, with each partner having bid a side suit, he opened his trump singleton to limit cross-ruffing. That did prevent a grand slam, but the small slam was unbeatable.

East and West, as it turned out, could have saved points by sacrificing in spades, but where is the player who would have done that with a powerhouse like West's?

Asked if he would handle the situation differently if he had the identical same hand and the opponents acted the same, he said: "Absolutely not. Over the long pull you will profit to the extent of plenty of points by trap-passing with that kind of hand."

Perhaps Marshall Has Outsmarted Russians

Lend-Lease Debt Talks Open Way for Old Score

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State George Marshall is believed to have outsmarted the Russians in getting them to agree to the beginning of talks on settlement of their $11,100,000,000 lend-lease account.

When talks were originally proposed a year ago, the United States acted in connection with the Russian application for a one billion dollar loan from this country.

State department took the position that the loan could be discussed only along with the settlement of all outstanding financial problems.

What was not mentioned was the fact that among these problems was the old question of the Soviet regime honoring the debts of its preceding Czarist government.

The failure of the Communist government to pay individual Americans for property seized under Communist decrees was the sole reason the United States waited so long to recognize the Lenin-Stalin regime.

Now if the Russians were again to bring up the loan proposition in the lend-lease talks, the United States could also bring up the settlement of old debts.

The old debts, of course, are a matter Moscow is believed less ready to talk about now than it was before the war.

BACKERS OF HAROLD E. STASSEN, the only avowed candidate for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, are taking new hope on the wings of fresh developments.

First off, they are encouraged by the widening split between Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg and Senator Robert Taft, the GOP domestic policy maker.

They also are buoyed by the fact that Stassen's European lead-finding tour—climaxed by his interview with Premier Stalin—has boosted the former Minnesota governor's stock.

The Vandenberg-Taft rift might point the way to a convention deadlock. In event of such a situation, Stassen's boys feel that their candidate might emerge on top much in the manner that Wendell Willkie did in 1940.

MANY FEDERAL WORKERS have come to regard the constant changes in their offices—shifting here and there and moving about—as a form of industry which might be curtailed.
Moving government offices around flourished throughout the war and some officials contended that it actually hampered, rather than helped the war effort.

During lengthy periods offices were dispersed, disrupted and disturbed generally because of the complications caused by moving.
Since the war moving activities have ceased less than most other government activities.

The present State department move is cited as a case in point. Offices were moved out of the historic old department to the new building, a half a mile away, which soon will be occupied by Secretary of State Marshall and his top advisers.

Many people already in the new offices, meanwhile, will move back to their old ones when Marshall is shifted.

GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO'S announced intention of setting up a monarchy in Spain left the United States cold. The State department says the move will not change the already-distant relations between the Madrid dictatorship and Washington.

It was pointed out that there has been no real indication that Franco plans to surrender any of the major powers which have put him and kept him safely as the dominant figure in Spain.

LOOK FOR A GOP DRIVE on Capitol Hill to probe the Federal Communications commission.
Both Senate and House GOP leaders are agreed on demands for an investigation.

Rep. John Wolverton (R), New Jersey, has asked for an inquiry and Senate Majority Leader Wallace White, of Maine, GOP communications expert, is amenable.

The probe would be undertaken to determine whether FCC policies are up-to-date, whether there is discrimination against radio stations and whether leftists wield influence in the commission.

LABOR'S FATE

THE HARTLEY LABOR bill, which passed the house of representatives by a vote of almost three to one, is a clear indication of a new mood in the field of national legislation. The government apparently is passing from a spirit characterized by unusual friendliness and tolerance toward labor, to a mood which, without being exactly hostile, seems determined to grant labor only what its leaders seem more clearly to deserve. What will happen between house and senate, between congress and President, is still uncertain.

Thus an era has passed in the realm of labor. There will still be struggles on the part of labor unions in the very human effort to get all they can for themselves and their associates. But rights and duties may be more evenly balanced than they have been in recent years, which may be regarded as a definite improvement in the long run. The laborer will still be worthy of his hire, and presumably will still get an adequate return for his efforts if he does his fair share of the work; but he needs to do his fair share, and if he does, there is likely to be fairer distribution of proceeds than there used to be.

COLLECTING VOICES

MOST AMERICANS would give almost anything to hear Lincoln's voice delivering the Gettysburg address. This is not available in the Yale University collection of voice records, simply because the phonograph had not been invented at the time he delivered it; but many historic moments have been preserved.

The bugle call that sounded the charge of the Light Brigade was repeated in 1890 by the bugler, for Robert Vincent, of New York, who formed the Yale collection. The Duke of Windsor's speech renouncing the British throne so that he could marry Mrs. Simpson is there. So also are the voices of both Roosevelts, of President Wilson, of Admiral Peary, Bernard Shaw and James Whitcomb Riley.

This collection does not exhaust the field. Other collectors might find a search for such historic records rewarding.

TWELVE STATES AWAKE

TWELVE STATES recognize that their schools face a crisis, and have raised their teachers' pay. Except for New York, all are from the West and South: Arkansas, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Indiana, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota and Washington. Fifteen large cities, according to the National Association of Education, have already agreed to pay their teachers more.

The other 31 states had better fall into line, as many of them plan to do. Otherwise they will find themselves left with only the poorest teachers, or with none at all.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 25—The most important part of the Senator Malone speech predicting the Greek-Turk aid bill would lead to war, failed to reach the public eye in most press and radio accounts.

The freshman Republican senator from Nevada said he had found no military man who said Greece, or Turkey could be defended against Russian attack for a week.

The genuine opposition in the senate to Mr. Truman's proposal is founded on this ground, and this opposition is much larger and more doubtful than the sprinkling of votes against the measure will indicate (early checking indicated only 15 votes against.) But many an eye will be spoken by senators who wonder sincerely if Greece and Turkey are the proper places where the line against Russia imperialism should be held. These senators would like to see a more defensible stand taken.

Indeed this Greek-Turk affair has caused more mental anguish among senators wrestling between their convictions and politics than any other issue so far, including the union reform bill. Malone is supposed to have called three distinguished citizens of his state on the telephone, for instance, and they advised him to go cautiously. This would have been easy because a freshman is supposed to be seen, but not conspicuously. Instead, he spent a 11 day Sunday in his office, courageously writing out what he thought, rather than what might be considered advisable.

Majority of the senators went through the same experience. Malone told an associate he decided to speak out because his constituents would soon find out the exact situation. He referred to some of the other senators privately as "hedgehogs," which is a new word in the political dictionary alluding to porkers afraid to jump the hedge.

His prophecy of probable war, however, was not necessarily substantiated by the surprising message from General Marshall the same day. Certain fast interpreters raced conclusively to the idea that Marshall considered the legislation indispensable urgent because he needed it for diplomatic effect at the Big Four ministers conference. Yet information generally circulated in the senate has suggested the Greek government is getting along fairly well with its military campaign against the Communist guerillas.

As a matter of fact, Senator Vandenberg is supposed to have arranged to get the Marshall message to help the bill acquire the greatest possible senate majority for popular effect.

Neither of these circumstances suggests Malone's prophecy might swiftly become true. Communism and its purposes are rather generally understood now throughout the United States, although practically no sentiment exists for going to war against such an inferior system. The Communies and their fellow travelers (Republican Chairman Reese aptly calls them "typhoid Marys"), may want a war and may try to provoke one, but the overwhelmingly popular leadership of this nation merely wants to know what is going on in the world and to dilute its Communist infiltrators.

DIET AND HEALTH

When the Air is Polluted

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONLY of recent years have medical men come to rank polluted air with polluted water as a cause of disease, and even today we are just beginning to realize the total bad effects which may come from breathing smoke-filled air.

The average person breathes in from 7,000 to 10,000 quarts of air daily. If this air contains irritating substances, they are, in large part, left behind when the air is breathed out again, being deposited in the nose, sinuses, windpipe or lungs.

Cases of Pneumonia
Dr. Clarence A. Mills of Cincinnati has made studies which indicate that the greatest number of pneumonia cases occur in areas where the smoke pollution is greatest.

Smoke, of course, does not cause pneumonia directly but Dr. Mills thinks it does set up a constant irritation of the air passages which makes it easy for disease germs to gain a foothold and start an infection.

In a number of cities he found that persons living on hills or in the areas of the city of the highest altitude did not suffer from pneumonia nearly as often as did those living in the lower areas.

Dr. Mills thinks that such infections as colds, sinus infection and bronchitis would also show a similar relationship to pollution of the air with smoke.

Respiratory Infections
It is well known that respiratory infections cause more illnesses which result in loss of working time and efficiency than does any other class of disease. Even though treatment with penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs has reduced the number of deaths which occur from pneumonia and similar conditions, the number of cases of these diseases is as great as ever.

With the growth of large industries in many communities and the consequent greater pollution of the air with smoke it is to be expected, if Dr. Mills is correct, that even more cases of pneumonia and other respiratory infections will develop.

It is evident that pollution of the air is destructive and costly. Those responsible for the health of the public are well aware of these facts and are making every effort to cut down smoke pollution of the air in every way possible. However, this is by no means a simple problem and will require for its solution the combined efforts of all those interested in the public health.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

SHERRY'S EYES were thoughtful.

"It seemed to me that if I went to New York with Mother I'd drift along all the rest of my life. I hated to hurt her but I felt that this was the right time to begin making up my own mind about things. I was ever going to do it. And I'm so glad, Lex, Mother's taken the whole thing better than I expected. And she'll be so busy with her new job, she won't have time to miss me. Mother's—very self-sufficient. Maybe I'll get to be that way, too. At least, I feel as though I've got a mind of my own and that I'm letting it function at last. And that's something."

She laughed a little. And Lex grinned down at her. But his eyes were grave. He asked, "What's this town of Oakridge like? You know anything about it?"

"Not much," Sherry admitted. "Only what Alan Holmes wrote about it—he's the man I'm going to work for. Population eight thousand, two hundred and something, just about the size of Brundage. And it's on the Scioto River and the newspaper has a circulation of—around three thousand, I think it was."

"This Alan Holmes—he's the editor?" Sherry nodded. "His letter sounded nice. I think he got a kick out of the angle of the city girl who wanted to go to a small town. He said reversals of the usual procedure were always intriguing and that maybe this idea of mine was a part of a new trend toward decentralization. He said my letter sounded literate and that he could give me all the actual newspaper training I'd need in Oakridge."

As she talked on, smiling and animated, Lex let his eyes rest on the warm softness of her hair, curling against her straight young shoulders, on the fresh loveliness of her skin, the sparkle of her curious golden eyes. It seemed to him he had never been aware before of just how beautiful she was, how gay and sweet. Had he put a high enough value on her friendship, Lex wondered with an odd humbleness. The comradeship between them, the frequent week-ends she spent at the farm, the afternoons skating and tobogganing, the evenings at the movies, or square dancing, or just eating hamburgers and putting nickels in the juke box at Pete's—all those things added up into something rather special. Funny how you could take a person pretty much for granted, liking her a lot, for years together—but not really appreciating all she had given you until it was on the verge of being taken away.

After a while Sherry became aware of something strange in his glance. "Why do you look at me so oddly, Lex?"

He grinned. "Was I? Maybe it's because I just realized how much I'm going to miss you." Somehow the thing became even more real for being put into words.

"Till miss you, Lex—and Steve and Aunt Pen, all of this." Her arms made a wide, embracing gesture. Generalities were always safer—much safer when you felt about anyone as she felt about Lex, when you were such an utter fool that you might give yourself away if you got very personal. Sherry hurried on, past the danger of that too revealing moment. "I've always loved it here—I always will. I hope Oakridge will be a little bit like Brundage. I'm counting on it."

Lex nodded. "I hope it will be, too, Sherry. And I hope you and everything you want there, all you've missed in your life up to now, the qualities of reality and simplicity, the friendly people, work you like. I hope you get it all tied up in a bright red ribbon, like the biggest Christmas gift ever, and that it all adds up to happiness."

Tears pressed against Sherry's eyelids, tears she dared not let fall. "Thank you, Lex. I hope you find the same things here, all the happiness—you and Kay."

Her glance fell away from his. Sometimes Lex saw too deeply and she wouldn't want him to read her thoughts.

In three weeks he and Kay would be married. The twentieth of June. It seemed to Sherry that if she could get through that date, she could get through the rest of her life. She tried to shut her mind against the picture of Kay, lovely and ardent, in bridal white satin, of Lex, tall and straight at her side, repeating the solemn vows that were so deeply moving. She mustn't cry—she mustn't!

But the hot tears pressed too hard, spilled over. Sherry buried her face against her knees and hid it in her clasped arms.

"Here," Lex said, surprised and appalled, "what on earth—" He would have put his arm around her, but Sherry shook her head and moved away from him. "Don't touch me," she said thickly. "Leave me alone. . . . Oh, Lex, I don't know why I'm crying. . . ."

"I do." But he made no further move to comfort her, just sat there, his arms clasped around his knees, frowning down at the water. "You're crying because you're a little scared. It isn't easy to turn your back on familiar things and start off by yourself on a whole new way of living."

"That's it," Sherry admitted. "That's all it is. And it's so foolish of me, because I'll be doing the thing I want to do, that I decided upon myself."

"Even so, you feel pulled two ways—confused, uncertain." "Oh, Lex, you do know how it is." She found her handkerchief in her pocket and scrubbed at her eyes. "You've been through the same thing."

FLAT BOOST IN RENT BLOCKED BY COMMITTEE

Rent Control Bill Continues Present Rules; Lifts Building Curbs

WASHINGTON, April 25—The fading chances of any flat across-the-board rent increase this year were given a knockout blow by the house banking and currency committee today.

The committee reported a rent control bill that would continue present limitations until Dec. 31, 1947. The senate banking and currency committee reported a bill extending controls until next Feb. 29 some time ago.

The house bill removes all controls on building materials except in special cases. The committee ruled that in case of shortages, planners of buildings for amusement and recreational use must obtain permits before purchasing materials for construction.

The committee bill also would force the President to place rent and housing control authority in "any permanent agency" he might name.

THIS WOULD eliminate housing administrator Frank Creedon, appointed by President Truman as rent czar, from a position of authority unless Creedon should be named to the permanent agency designated.

Rep. Wolcott (R) Mich., chairman of the banking and currency committee, said that he hoped to see rapid action on the bill. He said he expected to get it on the house floor next Wednesday, which would make it follow immediately after the 350 million dollar foreign relief legislation.

Until the committee reported the bill there was a chance that the house might have before it a 10 per cent across-the-board rent raise. Such an increase was voted by the committee, eight to four, on April 1.

The increase was brought up for reconsideration, however, and was defeated by a 14 to 10 vote.

IN THE committee bill the authority controlling rents may grant increases in so-called "hardship" cases much in the same manner as increases were allowed under OPA and OTC. Another provision for increases up to 15 per cent is allowed by the bill in cases in which a lease is signed which would remain in effect until after Dec. 31, 1948.

Such a lease, however, must have the consent of both the tenant and landlord.

The bill contains an amendment offered by Rep. Sundstrom (R) N. J., designed to expedite construction of pre-fabricated and "industrially built" housing. Under the amendment a pre-fab or production line producer may get the same 90 per cent FHA guaranteed loan available to conventional builders.

DIAPER SHORTAGE

TOKYO — A serious diaper shortage is harrying new Japanese mothers. It's all on account of the scarcity of Yutaka, or Japanese summer kimonos made of cotton cloth. Yutaka traditionally have afforded basic material for diapers in this country. Each garment yields eight diapers. Today Yutaka are very hard to find.

FLAT BOOST IN RENT BLOCKED BY COMMITTEE

Rent Control Bill Continues Present Rules; Lifts Building Curbs

WASHINGTON, April 25—The fading chances of any flat across-the-board rent increase this year were given a knockout blow by the house banking and currency committee today.

The committee reported a rent control bill that would continue present limitations until Dec. 31, 1947. The senate banking and currency committee reported a bill extending controls until next Feb. 29 some time ago.

The house bill removes all controls on building materials except in special cases. The committee ruled that in case of shortages, planners of buildings for amusement and recreational use must obtain permits before purchasing materials for construction.

The committee bill also would force the President to place rent and housing control authority in "any permanent agency" he might name.

THIS WOULD eliminate housing administrator Frank Creden, appointed by President Truman as rent czar, from a position of authority unless Creden should be named to the permanent agency designated.

Rep. Wolcott (R) Mich., chairman of the banking and currency committee, said that he hoped to see rapid action on the bill. He said he expected to get it on the house floor next Wednesday, which would make it follow immediately after the $350 million dollar foreign relief legislation.

Until the committee reported the bill there was a chance that the house might have before it a 10 per cent across-the-board rent raise. Such an increase was voted by the committee, eight to four, on April 1.

The increase was brought up for reconsideration, however, and was defeated by a 14 to 10 vote.

IN THE committee bill the authority controlling rents may grant increases in so-called "hardship" cases much in the same manner as increases were allowed under OPA and OTC. Another provision for increases up to 15 per cent is allowed by the bill in cases in which a lease is signed which would remain in effect until after Dec. 31, 1948.

Such a lease, however, must have the consent of both the tenant and landlord.

The bill contains an amendment offered by Rep. Sundstrom (R) N. J., designed to expedite construction of pre-fabricated and "industrial built" housing. Under the amendment a pre-fab or production line producer may get the same 90 per cent FHA guaranteed loan available to conventional builders.

DIAPER SHORTAGE
TOKYO — A serious diaper shortage is harrying new Japanese mothers. It's all on account of the scarcity of Yutaka, or Japanese summer kimono made of cotton cloth. Yutaka traditionally have afforded basic material for diapers in this country. Each garment yields eight diapers. Today Yutaka are very hard to find.

The line on the outside of cargo ships, known as the Plimsoll mark, shows the depth to which the vessel should sink when properly loaded. It was named for Samuel Plimsoll, British statesman, because of his activity in shipping reforms.

BATTLE LINES SET FOR FIGHT ON PALESTINE

Jews And Arabs Intensify Campaign To Gain Support In UN

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., April 25—The battle lines were drawn today for Monday's opening of the United Nations special session on Palestine.

Both the Jews and Arabs intensified their respective campaigns through soundings of delegations and pamphlets to strengthen support for their conflicting demands.

Britain firmly maintained that the sole task of the extraordinary session is to appoint a fact-finding commission to proceed to the Holy Land and left the question unanswered as to whether she will abide by any future decision of the U. N. general assembly.

The Big Five powers gave no indication of their forthcoming policies and programs on Palestine but hinted steadfast support for limiting the agenda to its present single item.

The United States government in particular became the target for outright championing of the Jewish cause, with U. N. secretary-general Trygve Lie a close second in the pressure of appeals and petitions showering in upon Lake Success.

The Jewish agency took exception to Lord Hall's statements on Palestine in the house of lords and stated:

"It is time to end such hypocrisy. If Britain's political leaders are genuinely concerned about the plight of European Jewry, they can cease wringing their hands."

"If they are sincerely concerned about the frail and unseaworthy ships in which the refugees are compelled to travel, they should be reminded that the United States government last year offered to provide the necessary transport for taking 100,000 refugees from Europe to Palestine and to cover the entire cost. The British were given the right to be in Palestine to facilitate Jewish immigration, not to prohibit it."

While the Arabs promoted their campaign for cancellation of the British mandate and proclamation by the assembly of an independent Palestine, six national liberal groups jointly asked President Truman's support in getting representation for the Jewish agency.

Eveland, Thursday afternoon, on the charges which were filed by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Mahoney entered a not guilty plea while Cottrell pleaded guilty. A charge of driving while intoxicated, filed against Mahoney by Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff, is pending in common pleas court.

PRICE REDUCTION PLAN SPREADING OVER COUNTRY

NEWBURYPORT, MASS., April 25—Backers of the "Newburyport plan" for ten percent price cuts in retail sales looked today to wholesalers for assistance in keeping the ball rolling.

More and more communities throughout New England and the rest of the United States are lining up with Newburyport in putting the plan into operation. Stocks were nearing depletion in many retail outlets and dealers called for more supplies.

A number of manufacturers, intrigued by success of the plan in Newburyport, announced reductions of their prices to keep pace with the retail cuts already effected.

A number of other manufacturers, however, were waiting to see if the plan is successful before announcing new price sales. Newburyport merchants said customers from outside their usual area were responsible for the nearly depleted stocks. Some customers came from as far away as Bridgeport, Conn., and Oldtown, Me.

Latest communities pledging to try the plan were: Brockton, Hyannis and Fitchburg, all big shopping centers.

PRICE REDUCTION PLAN SPREADING OVER COUNTRY

NEWBURYPORT, MASS., April 25—Backers of the "Newburyport plan" for ten percent price cuts in retail sales looked today to wholesalers for assistance in keeping the ball rolling.

More and more communities throughout New England and the rest of the United States are lining up with Newburyport in putting the plan into operation. Stocks were nearing depletion in many retail outlets and dealers called for more supplies.

A number of manufacturers, intrigued by success of the plan in Newburyport, announced reductions of their prices to keep pace with the retail cuts already effected.

A number of other manufacturers, however, were waiting to see if the plan is successful before announcing new price sales. Newburyport merchants said customers from outside their usual area were responsible for the nearly depleted stocks. Some customers came from as far away as Bridgeport, Conn., and Oldtown, Me.

Latest communities pledging to try the plan were: Brockton, Hyannis and Fitchburg, all big shopping centers.

STATE WORKERS STRIKE

WEST UNION, O., April 25—Otis Porter, state highway department superintendent in Adams county, said today that all highway workers in the county walked out on strike late yesterday. Adams county is part of the highway department's division nine, in which the latest of three strikes at Jackson ended yesterday.

Mrs. Treat Keller, president was in charge of the business meeting. She appointed the following committees for the special meeting on June 20 to be held in Scioto township school. The meeting is for all garden club members and invitations will be extended to all the various county clubs.

Mrs. Orville Dountz and Mrs. Ralph Willoughby will be in charge of the program for the June session. Mrs. Millar Beckett, Mrs. Ralph Haughn and Mrs. Russell Rodgers, food committee; Mrs. Guy Gulick, Mrs. Fred Thrallkill, Mrs. Arthur Wilkins, Mrs. William Rush and Mrs. R. R. Walker, table decorations; Mrs. Harold Beavers, Mrs. Francis Hoover, Mrs. Russell Rodgers, Jr., and Mrs. C. H. Rasor, decorating the auditorium; Mrs. Everett Phillips, Mrs. Charles Bliss and Mrs. William Beavers, reception committee; Mrs. Ben Grace and Mrs. Ralph Hutchins, registration committee; Mrs. Sam Earnest, Mrs. Treat Keller and Mrs. Fred Lamb, favors or souvenir committee.

Nominating committee members consisting of officers and chairmen of standing committees will submit their report at the next regular meeting. Mrs. Keller appointed Mrs. Guy Gulick and Mrs. C. H. Rasor to serve on the committee to beautify the lawn of the church and parsonage.

During the program Mrs. Harold Beavers gave a talk on "Birds" which was illustrated with many pictures. She also conducted a "Bird" contest.

Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Charles Bliss on May 28, at which time a plant sale will be held. Mrs. George E. Peters will be guest speaker. Mrs. Bliss extended an invitation to the garden club members to take field trips through "Blisswood."

SUGAR-SAVING DESSERT

A luscious, sugar-saving dessert — Spice Cake with Prune Filling topped with whipped cream.

BY BETTY NEWTON

If your sugar supply has hit "rock bottom" (and whose hasn't?), here are a few ideas which will help you satisfy those dessert requests from your family. Try using some other sweet in your dessert recipes — honey, corn syrup, and molasses are very satisfactory substitutes, and if used correctly in most recipes your family will be none the wiser.

Then, too, dried fruits such as raisins, dates, prunes, figs, apricots, and peaches can be used to help provide sweetness. Because the moisture has been taken from these fruits, the sugar is concentrated and the flavor of the fruit is sweeter even after stewing. A small amount of sugar or sugar substitute added will satisfy even the "sweetest tooth."

You will find that when you are substituting other sweets for sugar it is usually necessary to change the amount of liquid. This guide lists correct proportions for substitutes:

HONEY — Use 1 cup honey for 1 cup sugar and reduce liquid 1/4 cup for each cup honey used. When making cakes using chocolate, dates, raisins and nuts do not decrease liquid. In other cakes replace only one-third to one-half sugar with honey.

CORN SYRUP — Use 1 cup syrup for 1 cup sugar and reduce liquid 1/4 cup per cup.

MOLASSES — Use 1/2 cup molasses for 1 cup sugar and add 1/4 teaspoon soda. Reduce liquid 1/4 cup for each cup syrup used.

MAPLE SYRUP — Use 1 cup syrup for 1 cup sugar and add 1/4 teaspoon soda. Reduce liquid 1/4 cup for each cup syrup used.

MAPLE SYRUP AND CORN SYRUP — Use 1/2 cup maple syrup and 1/4 cup corn syrup for 1 cup of sugar. Reduce liquid 1/4 cup for each cup syrup used.

film drama series, airs at a new time—10 instead of 10:15 p. m. The first radio presentation of the current film hit, "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami," will be given that night with Film Stars Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Michele Morgan in the top roles. "The Adventuress," previously scheduled for its world radio premiere on "This Is Hollywood" Saturday will be heard instead on May 10 with Maureen O'Sullivan and Richard Greene in the starring roles.
New songstress to replace Betty Barclay—who retired to be a housewife—was finally found by Maestro Sammy Kaye in Baltimore. Her name is Laura Leslie, pretty teen-aged brunette who is making her professional debut with the swing-and-sway maestro on his "Sunday Serenade" and in personal appearances.

Veronica Lake made such a hit on Sherman H. Dryer's show, "Exploring the Unknown," last week that she will remain in New York and star on another broadcast if she can rearrange Hollywood commitments.
Garry Moore and Bing Crosby's former chesse sponsor are in an amiable huddle.
"Rogues Gallery" will be the summer replacement for "Bandwagon" starting June 1 for 17 weeks. Barry Sullivan gets the lead formerly played by Dick Powell.
Latest Hooper rating proves once again that NBC's Tuesday night line-up is the strongest that network radio has to offer. Four of the six top programs are Tuesday neighbors. They are Amos 'n' Andy, Fibber McGee and Molly, Bob Hope and Red Skelton, Heading the list is Hope.

Jack Carson will leave his current soup sponsor next year, having signed with another sponsor—the one now offering Jack Haley and Eve Arden.
It is now certain that the Bob Burns programs, rumored fading, will be dropped by the sponsor next season. Final decision just came through, last airing being May 25.
The "Amos 'n' Andy" show will leave the air May 27, returning for the 1947-48 season Oct. 7. Agency executives are dickering for a replacement show for the Summer to hold the Tuesday night time slot.
Jimmy Wallington, announcer on the Tony Martin Show Sunday night, this week chalked up his 20th radio birthday.
The only quiz show to rate among the top ten programs with Canadians is Phil Baker's "Take It or Leave It," which this week observed its seventh radio birthday. Baker's program was listed among the leaders in the latest Elliott-Haynes ratings which gave Charlie McCarthy top place.

With the broadcast Saturday, "This Is Hollywood," popular film drama series, airs at a new time--10 instead of 10:15 p. m. The first radio presentation of the current film hit, "The Private Affairs of Bel Ami," will be given that night with Film Stars Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Michele Morgan in the top roles. "The Adventurers," previously scheduled for its world radio premiere on "This Is Hollywood" Saturday will be heard instead on May 10 with Maureen O'Sullivan and Richard Greene in the starring roles.

FACTS, FIGURES ABOUT FOREST CEMETERY GIVEN

Superintendent Crites Tells Rotarians History Of City Burial Ground

Array of historical facts and figures pertaining to Forest cemetery was presented by E. O. Crites, cemetery superintendent, in an address to members of the Rotary club, Thursday, following a noon luncheon in the Pickaway Arms.

He cited that although Circleville's population is about 8,000, the cemetery figures show 10,330 burials there. The cemetery was founded 90 years ago, it comprises 87 acres, and has four miles of roadways.

Crites explained that in 1857 a subscription was taken in Circleville and $7,200 was thus raised to establish the burial grounds. That fund was raised by 32 volunteer solicitors. At the first business meeting seven trustees were selected, sale of the lots got under way, and the first burial took place in 1858.

DURING 1918, Crites said, there were 225 burials. The first Memorial Day was observed in Forest cemetery in 1862. He said that at this time four Revolutionary War soldiers and three Civil War Confederate soldiers are buried there. Altogether, Crites asserted, the cemetery is the last resting place for 450 soldiers. During the 90-year life of Forest cemetery it has had seven superintendents.

In 1897, William H. Albaugh is given credit for arranging for ground through the commission for the burial of indigent dead of Circleville and Circleville township. Four acres and 120 poles of ground was acquired. In 1919 Fred Clark was instrumental in securing additional ground for the burial of soldiers and soldiers' widows.

The original trustees were William Renick, William Doan, Wayne Griswold, John Groce, W. W. Bierce, Jonathan Renick and E. C. Clarke, and the first officers were William Renick, president; Jonathan Renick, vice president; George H. Fickard, secretary; and Samuel A. Moore, treasurer.

Burial of Mrs. William P. Darst on Oct. 12, 1858 was the first in Forest cemetery. The year 1918 — during the influenza epidemic — witnessed the greatest number of burials in any one year. The total was 225.

The four Revolutionary soldiers are: William Sudduth, Harley H. Sage, Robert Foreman and Jacob Zeiger. The three Confederate soldiers are: Tate R. Dreisbach, Jesse Richardson and Augustus Powell.

The seven superintendents: Rollin Fletcher, Josiah Arthur, Jonathan Sherman, George F. Groce, Jonathan Florence, Frank Gordon, and Mr. Crites.

BOY LOSES TROUSERS

Trousers of a small boy were destroyed by fire Thursday in the home of Arthur Hunter, East Corwin street. Firemen extinguished the blaze. The loss was small. The trousers had been hung over a gas stove in the kitchen and the blazing pants ignited curtains and scorched the wallpaper.
